Windows Update

Written by David on March, 29 2009

Here is a Windows Update, and it doesn't even come with a nifty yellow shield!

The north windows saw the light of day for the first time on forty years this past week. The Strand crew has been busy rebuilding the windows throughout the winter months. The plywood came down on the north windows to reveal the newly installed top and bottom sashes. As soon as the weather warms up (it was a high of 39°) the exterior frames will receive primer and paint.

Weather permitting, the south windows will be uncovered this week.

It was so windy this weekend, the "R" became crooked and finally blew off.
