Be safe

Written by David on July, 12 2009

For many years, the Strand has had a safe in the theatre. When we acquired the theatre, the safe was in the manager's office. We calculated the weight of the safe to be about #600. During the renovation, the safe remained. It was too heavy to move, and we didn't know what to do with it. The manager's office was converted into our concession area. The safe remained. This time it was put to a use, it served as the base cabinet for our microwave. A bit of overkill, but it was still #600 and not going anywhere.

This week we received our new ice machine. The safe had to make way for our ever expanding concession equipment. It was decided to take our safe to the warehouse that stores the rest of our stuff.

With only two volunteers available, it was a matter of using our heads to move the item. After a little thought, it started its trip outside the theatre. With the help of a come-along, it moved smoothly into the trailer. After a short trip across town, it is now being stored.

If anyone is interested in the safe, please contact us. We even have the combination!
