Horizontal Icicles

Written by David on December, 30 2012

On December 28, 2012 the Strand prepared for our Friday Night Frights. This was 2 days after a blizzard came to Shelbyville, Indiana. We always check all the doors of the theatre before every event. When we went out the back doors, we found something interesting.

Under our electric meter we found horizontal icicles. The pictures are correct, the icicles formed protruding 90 degrees from the building.
